

of cutaneous affections. A plaster composed of Haridra, Haritalam, Durva grass and rock-salt pasted together with cow's urine proves remedial in cases of Pimll and ring-worm. Somaraja seeds taken in combination with butter and hont-y prove curative in all forms of leucodermaa. O Rudra, the cure is almost certain through the administration of the foregoing compound, but the 'patient must live on a whey-rice regimen during the period of treatment. Plasters, composed of white Aparajita roots pasted with Sariva aيتد applied to the affected region, for a month, tend to cure all forms of leucoderma. O thou bull-ensigned deity, applications of plasters composed of Maricham and Sinduram pasted together with buffalo-butter would certainly cure Paiia and dyspnoea, O thou supreme deity, dry Gambhid roots cooked in combination with milk prove antidotal to Shukla-Pittam, Plasters of Mulaka seeds pasted with the expressed juice of Apamarga and applied to the affected part, prov^ efficacious in Shilhika. O thou supreme deity, ashes of burnt plantain bark and Apimarga twigs pasted together with the expressed juice of Eranda and applied to the affected patches prove curative in Siddhma. O^thou supreme deity, O thou bull-ensigned one, burn the ashes of a Kushmanda creeper, mixed with the 'bark of its stem pasted with cow's urine, and Haridra pasted with water, in .a closed crucible luted and plastered with buffalo-dung. By rubbing his body with this burnt com* pound, a man is sure to acquire a brilliant complexion.

Rubbing of the body with a compound consisting of Haridra, Dim-Haridra, and Kushtham pasted together with water tends to impart a brilliant glow to the complexion and a fragrant smell to the skin. Plastering of the body with Durva, Kakajangha, leaves of Arjuna and Jambu, and Lodhram pasted together with water tends to remove the bad odours of the skin. Solutions of Lodhram saturated with the powders of Kanakam form the most cooling